DEATH / THRASH · INLAND EMPIRE, CA

"Five guys, a stack of amps, and no interest in cleaning it up. Vile Intention plays it fast, plays it heavy, and plays it like they mean it. Every time they get on a stage."

THE SHORT VERSION

Who They Are

Vile Intention is a death/thrash band out of Inland Empire, CA, built on speed, low tunings, and zero interest in playing it safe. Formed in 2025 out of a single rehearsal space and too many riffs, the band played its first show the following January and released its debut single, “Blood and Dirt,” in July 2026. Onstage, the goal never changes: hit hard, keep the pit moving, and leave the room wanting the next show.

HOW WE GOT HERE

The Long Version

No big mystery. Vile Intention started the way most bands like this do: one rehearsal space, five guys who'd already played too many riffs to count, and no shortage of opinions about what heavy is supposed to sound like. The band came together in 2025 out of Inland Empire, California, and wasted little time getting in front of people. Their first show landed at Metabolic Brewing Co. in Ontario, CA on January 3rd, 2026.

By July 2026, the band had its first single out in the world. "Blood and Dirt" is the release that's been on repeat since it dropped, and it's the clearest snapshot yet of where the band is headed: fast, heavy, low-tuned, and built for a live room rather than a streaming algorithm.

That's still the whole plan. Vile Intention is playing venues like The Whisky in Hollywood and not slowing down, with the same goal every time they load in: hit hard, keep the pit moving, and leave the room wanting the next show.
